PACESC COURSE EVALUATION:

Homeschooling parent/teachers often find their students have taken part in non-traditional educational experiences for which they may wish to grant credit. These experiences may take the form of job-related, civic or volunteer work, organization membership, team sports, mission trip or exchange programs, or community training programs. These are just a few examples where parent/teachers may give high school credit for work done outside of the traditionally accepted course of study. These usually amount to elective credits, but may be applied to the core courses as well.

The following information is for record keeping purposes only. It is not the intention of PACESC to scrutinize the course information for approval or rejection.

Complete the following information for each credit given for a non-traditional educational experience or HONORS credit claimed. You may reproduce this sheet as many times as necessary to complete one per course.
